

*Everyone knows St Albans has been here for a long time.
How often have you wondered about the many historic buildings in and around the City?
Would you like the opportunity to get close up and personal with them? Exercise your grey matter away from your school with fascinating tales of our urban landscape.*

'Building for Posterity'

With a collection of slides, transparencies and artefacts, John Williams, geologist and adult education tutor at the Natural History Museum, will involve you in tracing the origins of building materials and their uses.
